The dangers to hazardous materials responders, working in chemical protective clothing, are equally as present at a hazmat incident as they are on a fire-ground.

This 4 hour course establishes best practices for establishing a Rapid Intervention team (RIT) as part of the overall Site Safety and management of a hazardous materials incident. And includes hands on training for students for removal of a downed responder from Chemical Protective Clothing.

This course qualifies for EMS Continuing Medical Education (CME) and training requirements towards Illinois OSFM recertification for "Hazardous Materials First Responder Operations".
